

Fallon Blattnor
Pilot
Columbia Helicopters

Fallon first fell in love with helicopters as a young girl growing up in Maui. Her career got started shortly after graduating from Cal-Poly Pomona University when she entered the U.S. Army as a Medical Evacuation Pilot flying UH-60A/L/M Blackhawks.

Her military service allowed her to travel all over the United States and worldwide; Germany, Fort Bragg, Fort Carson, and Afghanistan. In April 2017, Fallon left the Army to pursue a civilian career flying helicopters and began working at Black Hills Aerial Adventures in Custer, SD flying tours of Mount Rushmore and the Black Hills in a Bell 206, R-66, and R-44.

Currently, Fallon is working in Afghanistan for Columbia Helicopters as a SIC in the 107 Vertol. In her free time, she loves to volunteer with local S.T.E.M programs which encourage kids to enter into technology based careers and training.
