Michelle Rottmund is originally from Lancaster, PA. After graduating high school she enlisted in the U.S. Navy as a SONAR technician and Intelligence Analyst. After seven years she separated from the Navy and began flight school using her GI Bill at the College of the Sequoias in central California.

Following flight school she got a job as a flight instructor, tour pilot and aerial photographer at Tampa Bay Aviation in Clearwater, FL where she worked for about a year and a half. In 2016 she accepted a position as a tour pilot at Sundance Helicopters in Las Vegas where she transitioned into flying her first turbine job.

After another year and a half she was able to transition to Sundance's parent company, Air Methods, as a Helicopter Air Ambulance pilot where she is currently working for JeffSTAT in Coasteville, PA.
